1. CT Orientation

We are in good shape for the next influx of CT's on 11 October, with revised manuals and up-dated organizational charts. All speakers have now been confirmed.

25X1A

2. Special ☐ Orientation

B We share the dismay of the Operations School at the small enrollment (8) in this course which was originally planned for 20-30 people. We are relying mainly on Intelligence School instructors, in order to save our guest speakers for the CT program. The group has the advantage of being homogenous and well-motivated, and with this small number, the course can be managed on a rather informal basis.

3. Intelligence Review

Begins 28 Oct. B. We are making further progress developing the program for our "advanced" course, with about half the speakers already lined up. ☐ is trying to arrange for both Gen. Maples and Gen. Whitney to represent DIA, as this coverage has been rather meager in recent courses. The Registrar is putting out a Special Notice this week announcing the course. Advance interest appears to be high; eleven have already enrolled.

B 1. The photographic interpretation phase of the Map and PI Course began on 29 September. An additional student joined the class at the beginning of the PI phase which brings the enrollment to fourteen, the desired maximum. The enrollment breakdown by Agency component is as follows: NPIC-10, OCR-3, OSI-1.

25X1A B 2. The Writing Workshop for ORR analysts began on 28 Sep with 11 students. Unlike previous ORR Workshops, the majority of these students are the older, more experienced analysts. The GS grades run from 8 to 15, and only two of the students are junior analysts. Once again the course is being conducted jointly by [redacted] in a continuation of their previously successful combination of the Writing and Analysis Workshops. These more experienced analysts have been very receptive to this approach to their economic intelligence reporting problems.

3. The present Intermediate Writing Workshop class, which meets for the last time 6 Oct, consists of five analysts -- four from ORR, who are chiefly concerned with writing contributions to National Intelligence Surveys, and one from OCI. The high caliber of the students has made it possible to focus attention almost entirely on questions of logic and organization, areas in which they have shown the greatest need for improvement. The group has proven so apt in finding ways to improve the papers, projected by Viewgraph, that it has seldom been possible to discuss all five papers in the allotted two hours.

MANAGEMENT #92

B Management Course #92 was conducted at [] 27 September - 1 October. Thirty-seven students participated during the entire program. No irregularities of any type developed; and from all appearances, the program was effective and well received. This was our second opportunity to experiment with the new exercise designed to demonstrate power, influence, and trust (PIT) and while it was generally successful, some ideas for strengthening the effectiveness of the exercise were gleaned.

PHASE II

25X1A

[] left the program at [] for about five hours on 30 September in order to join the Office of Finance in the continuation of their Phase II activities. This Office of Finance Program seems to have really built up to a very promising undertaking.

SENIOR MANAGEMENT SEMINAR

As of this writing, we have received by telephone the names of seven DDP candidates. This leaves them still two short of their quota, and no alternates have been named. The two additional names have been promised, and it is of course almost too late to be concerned with alternates. With this exception, plans and arrangements for this course seem to be moving along in a normal manner. We are, however, growing concerned about the completion of the pre-work, which seems to be coming back slowly from all components; and, of course, concerning the DDP, we have not been able to even send out the pre-material. Less than two
